

RAPA Healthcare

Your Expert for Valve Technology and Fluidics

ABOUT US

Embedded in the RAPA group of companies, a globally recognized engineering and technology partner as well as first-choice supplier of valves and total mechatronic solutions for diversified markets, RAPA Healthcare relies on synergy effects and the group's extensive resources and infrastructures. RAPA Healthcare acts as a supplier of components and systems in medical and analytical technology devices in which valves play a major role. We provide medical engineering manufacturers and distributors with the design and manufacture of customized precision components. The key technologies that enable these solutions are hydraulics, pneumatics, mechatronics and fluidics. RAPA Healthcare accompanies customers from the idea to the serial production of the product.

Our development team consists of experienced engineers, technicians and interdisciplinary specialists who realize solutions for specific customer applications with great commitment and know-how. In-house manufacturing guarantees consistently high quality, long product availability and rapid change management in series production. In any case, the customer gets solutions highly adapted to the task, compromises in performance and quality are avoided by the holistic approach.
